

ADVENTURES IN LEARNING

January 20, 2009

January 27, 2009

February 3, 2009

10:00 A.M.
FYI

Beth Caviness

Attorney at Law

"What to do with Granny"

10:00 A.M.
FYI

Don Rosenberg

Gardener

Instant Organic Gardening

10:00 A.M.
FYI

Michelle Hitselberger

Meck. Parks & Rec. Dept.

"Its in the Budget"

10:00 A.M.
PERSONALITIES

Mark deCastrique

Mystery Writer

Writing is no Mystery

10:00 A.M. PERSONALITIES

Dr. Hanchett

Museum of the New South

What's New at the Museum

10:00 A.M.
PERSONALITIES

Brandon Stanley

Opera Carolina

2009-2010 Programs

10:00 A.M.

Tina Maynard

Spanish I

10:00 A.M.

Tina Maynard

Spanish I

10:00 A.M.

Tina Maynard

Spanish I

11:00 A.M. - POTPOURRI

Dr. James Sasser

Charlotte Mecklenburg History

11:00 A.M. - POTPOURRI

Dr. James Sasser

Charlotte Mecklenburg History

11:00 A.M. - POTPOURRI

Dr. James Sasser

Charlotte Mecklenburg History

1:00 P.M.

Ingrid Amois,
Sally Doughton

Water Media

Hands on Clay

1:00 P.M.

Ingrid Amois,
Sally Doughton

Water Media

Hands on Clay

1:00 P.M.

Ingrid Amois,
Sally Doughton

Water Media

Hands on Clay

1:00 P.M.

Dr. Luther Wade

1:00 P.M.

Dr. Luther Wade

1:00 P.M.

Dr. Luther Wade

Valois or Plantagenet? Who was the true King of France? When King Charles IV of France died in 1328, he was as yet childless, and when his widow gave birth to his posthumous daughter, his cousin Philip, Count of Valois, claimed the throne. But across the Channel there arose another claimant--Edward III of England, the last male descendant of the French Capetian dynasty.

The rival claims resulted in a series of conflicts that lasted well over 100 years, and involved many famous battles, such as Crécy and Agincourt, and famous figures like the Black Prince, Henry V of England, mad King Charles VI of France and Joan of Arc. The conflict established the national identities of France and England.

ADVENTURES IN LEARNING

February 10, 2009

February 17, 2009

February 24, 2009

10:00 A.M.
FYI

Lyndall Hare, PhD
CEO, Eldercare Coaching &
Consulting
Naturally Occurring Retirement Communities

10:00 A.M.
FYI

David Merriman
River Keeper
What is a River Keeper?

10:00 A.M.
FYI

Christine David, PhD.
Asst. Prof. of Communication
Writing Your Memoirs

10:00 A.M.
PERSONALITIES

Sally Brewster
Park Road Books

New Books

10:00 A.M.

Tina Maynard
Spanish I

10:00 A.M.
PERSONALITIES

Bryan Osbourne
Wolfe Camera, Arboretum

Digital Cameras and More

10:00 A.M.

Tina Maynard
Spanish I

10:00 A.M.
PERSONALITIES

Ron Fee

The Complete Story of the Wright Brothers

10:00 A.M.

Tina Maynard
Spanish I

11:00 A.M. - POTPOURRI

Dr. James Sasser
Charlotte Mecklenburg History

11:00 A.M. - POTPOURRI

Dr. James Sasser
Charlotte Mecklenburg History

11:00 A.M. - POTPOURRI

Dr. James Sasser
Charlotte Mecklenburg History

1:00 P.M.

Ingrid Amois,
Sally Doughton
Water Media
Hands on Clay

1:00 P.M.

Ingrid Amois,
Sally Doughton
Water Media
Hands on Clay

1:00 P.M.

Ingrid Amois,
Sally Doughton
Water Media
Hands on Clay

1:00 P.M.

Dr. Luther Wade

1:00 P.M.

Dr. Luther Wade

1:00 P.M.

Dr. Luther Wade

Valois or Plantagenet? Who was the true King of France? When King Charles IV of France died in 1328, he was as yet childless, and when his widow gave birth to his posthumous daughter, his cousin Philip, Count of Valois, claimed the throne. But across the Channel there arose another claimant-- Edward III of England, the last male descendant of the French Capetian dynasty.

The rival claims resulted in a series of conflicts that lasted well over 100 years, and involved many famous battles, such as Crécy and Agincourt, and famous figures like the Black Prince, Henry V of England, mad King Charles VI of France and Joan of Arc. The conflict established the national identities of France and England.